About Crack Theatre Festival

Crack Theatre Festival: where experimental performance artists from around Australia unleash their wildest ideas.

The Festival is a unique national theatre and performance arts festival geared specifically towards supporting the development of emerging artists. These artists will help shape the future of Australian arts practice. The Festival provides opportunities for discussion and networking, skills development, and performance.

The Festival takes place annually in Newcastle as a part of This is Not Art (TiNA) - Australia's largest experimental and emerging arts and media festival. TiNA includes curated programs from the National Young Writers' Festival, Critical Animals and Crack Theatre Festival.

Our vision is to foster a feeling of community, with artists supporting each other as peers, encouraging communication and collaboration. We present a curated festival program, but do not charge the artists or audience to participate. Our aim is to promote access, experience and opportunity.

The Crack Theatre Festival is an incorporated association and the organisation is managed by a Management Committee.
